ISN'T HEDY CRAZY TO WALK AROUND WITHOUT A COAT IN THIS COLD WEATHER?

YEAH, CRAZY LIKE A FOX!

WOO! WOO!

Al Hartley

Get Rid of UGLY PIMPLES this new easy way!

Amazing new medicated lotion developed by a doctor works wonders by clearing up complexion in one week or less!

DON'T let a bad complexion ruin romance, spoil your fun, cause you to be embarrassed, shy or ashamed. If you suffer from acne, the common external cause of pimples among young people, try this wonderfully effective medicated lotion that was developed by a practicing physician to clear up his own teen ager's complexion after other methods had failed. It has produced astonishing results for many thousands of others. It is GUARANTEED to help you or it won't cost you a single cent!

Doesn't Show On Your Face

Keraplex is a skin-colored lotion (NOT a greasy salve or ointment!) that is quickly absorbed by the skin and gets right down in the pores where its healing and antiseptic ingredients can go to work. After you have applied it, there is no trace left on the surface. In fact, it makes a perfect powder base for girls and a refreshing after shaving lotion for men . . . actually improves the tone of the skin! It is pleasant and easy to use.—leaving your skin soft, clean and fragrant.

Boys and girls—if you have pimples on your shoulders or back, you can avoid embarrassment when they are exposed to view. For Keraplex keeps your shoulders, arms, back and chest wonderfully free from pimples—without soiling clothes, without messiness or greasiness!

Works in SIX Out of SEVEN Cases!

An analysis of RESULTS taken from actual case histories proves that Keraplex is successful in clearing up six of every seven cases of externally caused blackheads and pimples. It tones up the complexion generally, giving it a healthy, radiant glow.

Try This New Method Without Risking A Penny!

Keraplex is GUARANTEED to clear up your skin troubles or there will be NO COST to you whatsoever. If yours happens to be the ONE extra-stubborn case out of seven which Keraplex cannot help in one short week, it will cost you nothing to have tried it. Keraplex is sent to you with that simple, positive GUARANTEE!

SEND NO MONEY

You need send no money with the coupon below. When postman delivers your Keraplex lotion (in plain wrapper marked "Personal"), deposit with him only the modest price indicated below, plus a few cents postage. Then use your Keraplex morning and night for a full week, following the simple directions which will be enclosed.

If you do not SEE RESULTS that delight you — if you are not fully convinced that Keraplex IS clearing up your complexion — just return the empty bottle or unused portion and the purchase price will be refunded in full. Don't delay a single day. The longer you let your skin troubles go, the more difficult it will be to clear them up and get your complexion back to a healthy, clear, unblemished condition! Clip and mail the coupon TODAY, Underwood Laboratories, Inc., Stratford, Conn.

BEFORE

Note more than a dozen blemishes on just one side of this girl's face before KERAPLEX was applied.

AFTER

Same girl had used KERAPLEX twice a day for only 5 days when above photo was taken. Note the amazing improvement.

BEFORE

This young man suffered from a severe case of acne for years and tried all the usual "remedies" without success.

AFTER

Same young man after using KERAPLEX twice a day for just one week. Notice the decided improvement—pimples completely gone!

WHAT USERS SAY:

"I was suffering from a severe case of acne . . . and with only 4 days' treatment with Keraplex . . . was completely relieved."—P. S.

"I have been completely satisfied with your lotion to help clear up the pimples on my face."—K. W.

"I have used Keraplex and for the first time in my life my pimples are clearing up in good shape. I can't thank you enough!"—E. S.

The qualities Mr. Little liked best in his employees were courtesy, calmness and care.

"These are the three C's of the great Little enterprise," Mr. Little finished off his talk with his new group of employees.

Standing in the background, but apparently paying attention to each word was Hettie Carter. "What a man," she thought to herself. "So courteous, so calm," and then with a sigh of regret, "and so careful."

It may be thought that the object of Hettie's affection was the speaker Mr. Little himself, but that was not so. The dream man starring in Hettie's thoughts was the floorwalker in the Housewares Department, seventh floor of Mr. Little's department store.

For months, Hettie had taken every opportunity in her precious spare time to take the express elevator to the glittering housewares department just to be near her ideal man. In fact, she had even spent a good bit more than spare time there on the seventh floor, hoping she could meet him and he would speak to her. It was no surprise to Hettie to have gotten fired for excessive lateness from the firm where she had been employed. It was only natural, therefore, that she applied for a sales clerk's job at Little's. She had carefully filled in her application for employment and in the space after "Choice of Department", she had clearly printed, "Housewares."

Her thoughts were quickly jerked back to the present moment in Mr. Little's office, when an elbow near at hand gave her a quick nudge, and Mr. Little's voice boomed ominously, "and now as I said, young lady, please accompany Mrs. Kennedy, your training teacher, to the department where you will work."

Her great moment of expectancy was here at last and with fluttering heart, Hettie followed Mrs. Kennedy through the aisles and up the stairs which she had trod so many times before. "And now," Hettie thought, flushing a little, "I'll be able to spend eight whole hours a day near the man I love."

"Hettie, this is Mr. Hodgekiss, the floorwalker for this department," Mrs. Kennedy introduced. "He will show you around." And there Hettie stood at last, face to face with her idol.

"How do you do, Hettie," Mr. Hodgekiss said with a smile. "I hope you'll be very happy in Housewares."

Truly, Mr. Hodgekiss was everything that a girl like Hettie would dream about. He was not young, but certainly not old, very handsome, had dark wavy hair, and the nicest smile in the world. Hettie was completely hypnotized by his first words to her.

"Uh . . ." Hettie muttered, unable to do anything but stare into his soft, brown eyes.

"I say, you do feel all right, don't you," Mr. Hodgekiss questioned with concern.

". . . Uh," was all Hettie could bring herself to speak before her dream man.

"If you'd like to go home . . ."

"No, no! I'm all right! Perfectly all right," Hettie said quickly, afraid that she might be sent away from him forever.

"Then let me show you around. This department is rather complicated. Here are the pots and pans . . ."

Hettie finished vaguely, "And over there are the coffee makers, and over there are the gadgets," never taking her eyes away from the face she had thought about so often.

"That's right," said Mr. Hodgekiss, definitely uncomfortable at Hettie's strange behavior. "Here is your sales book."

"Oh, thank you! Thank you so very much," Hettie murmured, as if he had just given her a diamond necklace.

"Well, if you have any questions, please ask me," and Mr. Hodgekiss beat a safe and hurried retreat around the roasting pans.

Hettie's eyes followed him all the way to the elevators, admiring his determined walk, his broad shoulders. She put her sales book down and leaned across the pans to stare at the closed elevator doors behind which Mr. Hodgekiss had just disappeared. He occupied her every thought.

"Pardon me, Miss," a sharp voice broke in, "could you tell me where the meat grinders are?"

Hettie pointed, not answering, her eyes not moving from the elevator doors.

"Excuse me," another voice inquired, "where can I find the electric mixers?"

Hettie's other hand fluttered in the opposite direction. She didn't even look at the customer standing beside her. All morning and all afternoon long, Hettie couldn't take her eyes off Mr. Hodgekiss, or off the place where she had last seen him. Customers came and went, and Hettie could show them where they could find what they were looking for, but her mind wouldn't let her make a sale. At the end of the day, Hettie's sales book was empty, but Hettie was happy in spite of it. She had finally spent a whole day being close to the man she admired most . . . Mr Hodgekiss.

After a whole week of being near the man she loved, Hettie was still walking on air. This feeling, however, was not shared by Mr. Hodgekiss. He was worried and very nervous about his new employee's attitude. He confided to a friend in the store, "I think Hettie in Housewares is ill. she doesn't seem to have her mind on her job."

Through Mr Little's elaborate system of informants placed throughout the store, went the word, "Hettie in Housewares is not doing her job." "Hettie in housewares is not making the grade." "Hettie in Housewares should have a talking to."

It was Mr. Hodgekiss' painful duty the following week to carry out Mr. Little's explicit personal orders and call Hettie over for her little talk.

". . . in short, Hettie," Mr. Hodgekiss finished, "according to your empty sales book, you are neither courteous, calm nor careful." Mr. Hodgekiss looked deep into Hettie's eyes to see if he could find some clue to her apparent disinterest in her job.

Hettie met his eyes in fascinated gaze, and she could control her tongue no longer. "I love you," she blurted out.

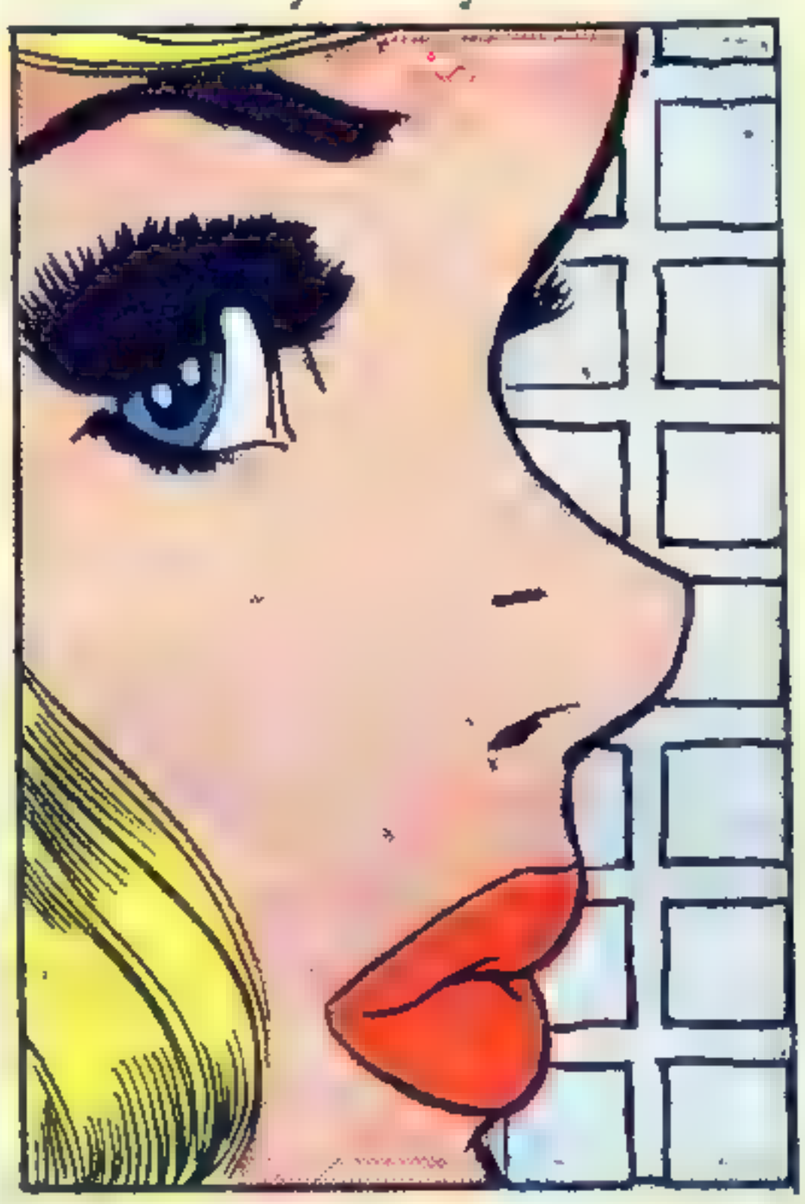
Mr. Hodgekiss could do nothing but stare.

"I love you," Hettie repeated. "I think you're wonderful, marvelous, strong, handsome, honest, courteous, calm and careful."

"You . . . you . . . you don't know what you're saying," Mr. Hodgekiss mumbled, backing away toward the wall.

Hettie matched each of his backward steps with a forward one of her own. "I do know what I'm saying," she insisted. "I love you. I love every moment being near you here in the Housewares Department. I only took this job so I could be closer to you!"

Made reckless by her declaration after so many hours of dreaming, Hettie continued the scene. "Why don't you love me?"



she inquired. "Why must I go on with this unrequited worship for you? Why don't you take me in your arms?" and with each step, Hettie backed him farther against the wall.

"I . . . I can't! I . . ." he stuttered, his eyes casting wildly about for someone to save him. But instead of finding a rescuer, Mr. Little himself hove into view around the counter. He was just in time to see that there was definitely something besides shop talk going on between his two employees.

"Mr. Hodgekiss," Mr. Little shouted. "What's going on here?"

"Oh, er, nothing, Mr. Little. Nothing at all. I was just having a little talk with Hettie in Housewares here about . . . uh . . . about her sales record," the harried floorwalker tried to explain.

With his words, Hettie thought wildly to herself, "He does love me or he wouldn't lie for me like that. And to Mr. Little too!" Adoringly, she gazed into his eyes.

Mr. Little seemed satisfied with the hurried explanation in view of Hettie's past sales record in Housewares, nodded knowingly and started to leave. As an afterthought, he turned and inquired, "How is your charming wife, Hodgekiss . . . and those seven beautiful children of yours?"

At his words, Hettie's world dropped out from under her feet with a rush. Her heart plunged, her mind went blank. She looked into Mr. Hodgekiss' eyes again, but this time not with worship, but with girlish reproach. "Why did you lie to me?" she demanded helplessly.

"But, I didn't lie . . ." Mr. Hodgekiss explained in bewilderment. "I never said a word to you!"

"Don't explain," Hettie interrupted. She held her hand in front of her face and turned away from him. When her eyes cleared of tears, she opened them and raised them to the far end of the Housewares Department.

There, before her very eyes was the most handsome man she had ever seen. He was young, had blond wavy hair, and had the most wonderful smile in the whole world. As if in a trance, she floated over to him. At closer view, he was even more attractive. Hettie looked deep into his eyes and said with a dazed smile and a trance-like voice, "I'm Hettie in Housewares. Won't you please let me help you?"
